

2nd October 2009

Health & Safety Executive - Safety Statements and Risk Assessments

The Health & Safety Executive of England has updated its website to include very valuable information with regard to Safety Statements and risk assessments with examples for offices, warehouses, factories and more. In the current economic climate when employers may be reluctant to take on the expense of employing a Health & Safety consultant to prepare the documents on their behalf, the information which is available on this section of the website is extremely valuable.

The information can be accessed at <http://bit.ly/y8Lrg>

While the legislation in the Republic of Ireland is different to that in England, the legal principles are the same and therefore these documents can be adapted without very much difficulty.

The information can be downloaded from the website and adapted by the employer to suit their organisation.